Cop shop in limbo

By Aidan Curtis

The decision on what to do about the Kalangadoo police station is still in the works, according to South Australian Police Commissioner Grant Stevens.

Following the closure of the Kalangadoo police station in 2018, residents have been left in limbo around whether or not it would re-open or be repurposed for other government agencies.

Comm Stevens said SAPOL could not yet make a decision on the police station until it received a report back from a State Government taskforce.

"We have done a review of regional policing initiatives, which has been referred to the Premier's taskforce on sustainable policing," Comm Stevens said.

"We are waiting for that report to come out, but notwithstanding that, we are continuing to review what the policing requirements are for this location.

"It may not actually impact on our final decision making, but we need to wait and see."

While the decision was still to come, Comm Stevens said he understood the concerns of the Kalangadoo community and thanked them for their patience with the matter.

"I'm hopeful that we can make a decision sooner than later, which I know will be of importance to the community," he said.

"And simply getting the decision is just as important as the outcome."

The Kalangadoo police station has been closed for a number of years after the town's sole police officer left.

Last month, The Penola Pennant reported that Police Minister Joe Szakacs wrote to Member for MacKillop Nick McBride confirming there were "no current plans" for the office to be reopened.

"I can reassure local residents, however, that the Kalangadoo area police response continues to be served by police officers based out of neighbouring police stations of Millicent, Penola and Mount Gambier," Mr Szakacs wrote in the letter.

"Police response to the area is based on identifying and deploying the nearest patrol to an incident, regardless of the police station of origin or shift commencement."

He also stated Minister for Infrastructure and Transport Tom Koutsantonis was responsible for reallocating the vacant home for other government workers, stating the home was "considered a single location" for the Government Employee Housing program and thus he could not utilise the home for employees outside SAPOL.

There was some progress recently, with it being recently announced the home would be re-purposed to house other government workers outside SAPOL with current Minister for Infrastructure and Transport Tom Koutsantonis announcing it in a recent Parliament sitting.

Cyclists coming to South East

Hundreds of cyclists will head to the South East as part of a nine-day annual tour with Bicycle SA.

Between October 14 and October 22, over 200 cyclists from all over Australia are expected to take part in touring the Limestone Coast.

Bicycle SA chief executive Brett Gillett said the 2023 event has already sold out and it will be a great opportunity to showcase the region.

"Cycle tourism is a major driver of regional development in the state and events like this can leverage the investment made by the state in the Tour Down Under," Mr Gillett said.

Riders will start and finish in Mount Gambier / Berrin, with the tour taking them through Beachport, Robe, Kingston SE, Naracoorte, Penola and Coonawarra.

It will be difficult to identify the people in this photo in the South East Family History Group collection but maybe someone has a named copy in their family album?

This historic photo was taken at the Lake Bonney Jetty and shows members of the Oberlander and Busbridge families. If you can help confirm the identity of those in this photo or the approximate year it was taken please con-

Time to spring forward

The clocks are set to move an hour forward this weekend, with Daylight Savings Time kicking in on October 1.

The change will happen at 2am Sunday, when South Australia will move into Australian Central Daylight Time (ACDT), UTC+10:30.

As well as changing the clocks, Flinders University sleep experts Leon Lack and Gorica Micic said it was important for people to adapt their sleep schedule to cope with the change.

They recommended going to bed and waking earlier in the days leading to the transition and avoiding caffeine in the second half of the day.

Don't forget to move your clocks forward this Sunday, October 1.

Community help sought for bird count

South East residents are being asked to do their bit for conservation by taking part in the annual Aussie Bird Count.

The Aussie Bird Count, which runs from October 16 to October 22, calls on communities to spend some time outside and count the birds in their local area. BirdLife Australia public affairs manager Sean Dooley said the count has a vital role in collecting data on species diversity and populations.

"The Aussie Bird Count brings people together and promotes our connection with the land around us," Mr Dooley said.

"It's an ideal opportunity to spend time in one of the many beautiful parks and gardens in our country while also making a contribution to Australia's conservation efforts."

Mr Dooley said just 20 minutes a day watching birds outdoors could have a big impact.

"We aim to spark passion for birdwatching and encourage active participation in the event," he said.

"The Aussie Bird Count is a fantastic opportunity for all Australians to contribute to bird conservation in our beautiful country.

"By spending just 20 minutes observing and counting birds, participants can play a crucial role in protecting our unique avian biodiversity."

St Mary's garden will be open next month.

Enjoy the tranquil gardens at St Mary's.

Blooming haven hosts fair

The delightful country garden at St Mary's Vineyard with its hundreds of roses and many dry-stone walls is a fitting location for the annual Limestone Coast Plant and Trade Fair.

Established in 1937, the Mulligan family have created an impressive property, with the garden taking centre stage. Over the years plants and bulbs suitable for the soil and climate have been planted and now hundreds of roses, bulbs, iris, hardy perennials, trees and shrubs surround the classic homestead and outbuildings, adding colour and texture throughout the year. However, in this garden it is the rose that is queen!

The owners have used sandstone rock and plate from a quarry on the property as if it were nature's Lego, skilfully and painstakingly constructing many metres of drystone walling, pathways, ornaments, ramps, plinths, platforms and in the front paddock, an outstanding trilogy of tree rings.

A passion for fresh seasonal produce has led to the creation of a substantial kitchen garden in what was once a sheep yard. Using permaculture principles, a range of fruit and vegetables are grown both in raised beds and in the ground, with arches for apples and tomatoes making decorative as well as functional features. A shade house is used for growing seedlings and propagating plants.

St Mary's Vineyard will make an ideal setting for the 2023 Limestone Coast Plant and Trade Fair.

A diverse range of talented artists, trades and specialist growers will exhibit everything from bulbs to trees, natives to exotics, garden arts, trades, food stalls, wine tasting, refreshment and children's activity area.

Money raised will go to the Country Fire Service.

Quiz night a triumph of knowledge, school support

Penola High School has hailed its quiz night a success, with eight teams going head-to-head in trivia battle.

Teams duked it out for an array of prizes, with last-minute entrants PCGLMB walking away with the top score in the end.

The event was compered by Penola High School student representative council co-presidents Olivia Berkin and Lochy Neale, who the school said did an excellent job on the night.

"A highlight of the night was the song lyrics round - this required a competitor from each table to let go of their inhibitions and try and sing the next line of a song," Penola High School said in a statement.

"It was a most enjoyable evening and also a successful fundraiser for the school.

"Penola High School thanks the many businesses and individuals in our community who donated prizes, it is wonderful to see so much support for our students and school."

Team PCGLMB won the top prize at the Penola High School quiz night.

Extravaganza for seniors

By Sophie Conlon

The region's seniors will be celebrated in October with a month-long program designed to get people out and about and enjoying everything the community has to offer.

Celebrate Seniors Working Group co-ordinator Catarina Santos said she was looking forward to the celebrations kicking off with an opening ceremony on Tuesday, October 3.

"For the official opening we have Jack Harry, who is an Elvis impersonator, and Anne Fraser, she is a country singer, and we've got the Piano Man, who is really good on the piano and sings," she said.

"We have had some great activities return by popular demand, as well as introducing some new and exciting events that will surely interest many seniors."

Program highlights include live music, open days, cooking demonstrations, art classes, dancing and more and Ms Santos said it would be a jam packed month.

"We try and incorporate many music events on the program, the dancing demonstration incorporates rock 'n' roll, the waltz, ballroom and line dancing," she said.

Ms Santos said 5THE FM would host an open day and there would also be a concert by music students at Millicent High School.

"There will be more local young talent happening on stage," she said.

The program will host events all over the Wattle Range Council area including Millicent, Penola, Beachport, Glencoe, Maaoupe and Kalangadoo and Ms Santos said she was extra excited about one of the Penola events.

"The Mount Gambier City Band, I'm so excited, they're coming on Sunday [October 29] and they will be performing in the Penola Town Square and after that everyone has been invited to have afternoon tea with the Terra Rossa CWA group," she said.

With the program running since 2011 Ms Santos said they always received great feedback and were looking forward to another successful Seniors Month.

"We are trying to target those who are isolated or homebound, just trying to get them out and about and interacting, having fun and mixing and building friendships," she said.

"The seniors know that in October there is a program for them and they are keen to see it.

"A lot of them say there is lots on and there is such a wide variety of events to target everybody's taste."

The Stumpy Gully Bush Band will return for the closing ceremony on Tuesday, October 31, which Ms Santos said would also include the Senior of the Year Presentation.

"The Senior of the Year nominations close on the 16th, so hopefully we'll get nominations before that date," she said.

All events in the program are free, except two which are subsidised by the council, and most will have morning or afternoon tea provided.

The program is available on the council's website or in local businesses and bookings are essential online through Humanitix, at the Millicent Public Library or one of the Visitor Information Centres at Penola, Millicent or Beachport.

Research looks to seaweed for skincare

Rivoli Bay seaweed could be the next big thing in anti-aging skincare, with researchers at Flinders University finding the plant can stimulate and boost the skins collagen production by as much as 16 times the normal rate in 48 hours.

Flinders University College of Medicine and Public Health professor Wei Zhang said they found South Australian brown seaweed extracts had huge potential to be used to help slow the effects of aging on our skin.

"Collagen acts as a building block for bones, teeth, muscles, skin, joints and connective tissue, while elastin gives skin its elasticity and strength – and both these proteins are popularly promoted by the beauty industry as essential for the appearance of healthy skin," he said.

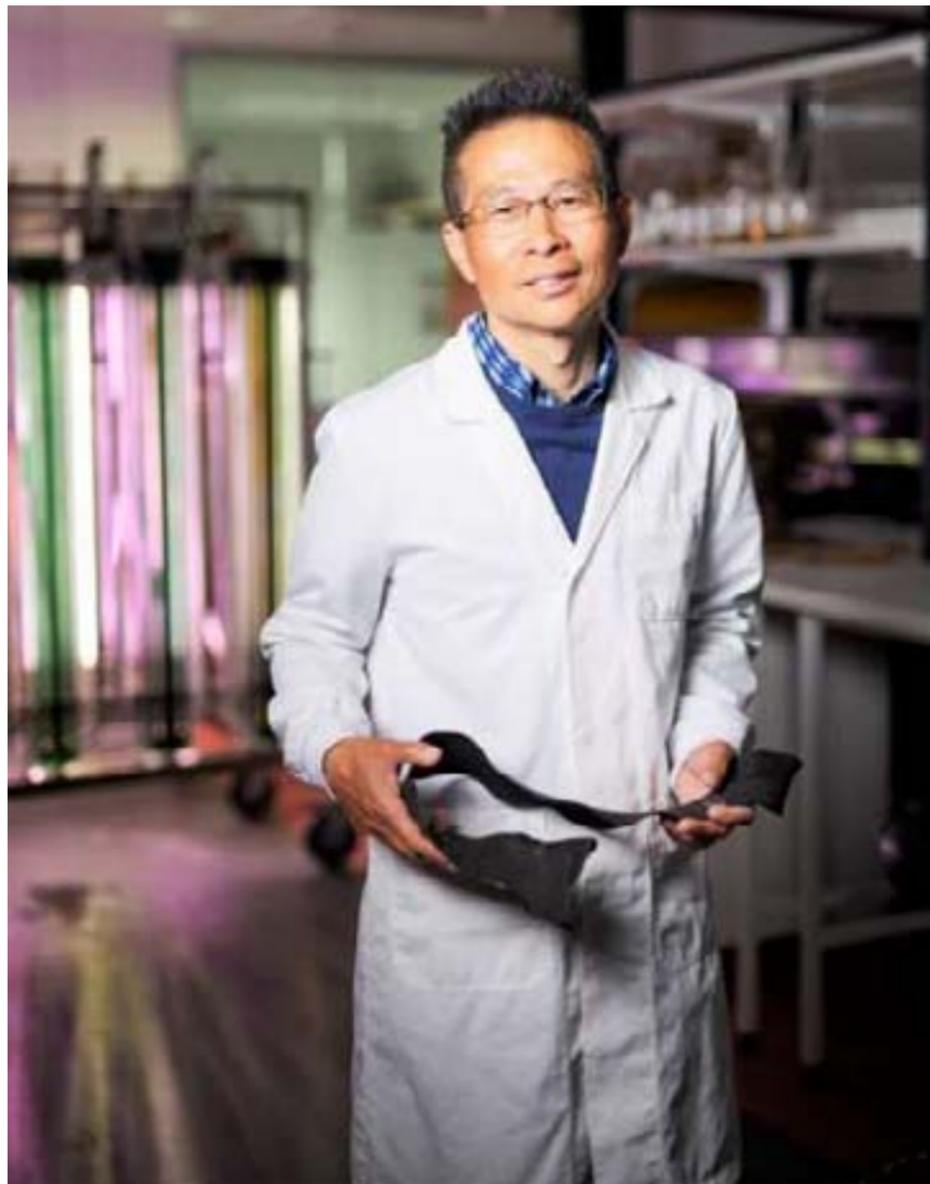

"Our findings will help to fill knowledge gaps and sustainably develop brown seaweed advancement in topical and supplement skincare products."

Species of seaweed studied included Ecklonia radiata, Cystophora moniliformis, and Cystophora siliquosa which were collected from freshly deposited beach-cast seaweeds in Rivoli Bay, Beachport.

Prof Zhang said researchers found extracts from the seaweed not only stimulated the growth of collagen, but also inhibited a process called glycation, which leads to the deterioration of collagen and elastin.

"So far anti-glycation agents haven't been strong enough to have a major impact on anti-aging, so our discovery is really exciting as we can see the potential to develop stronger anti-glycation extracts from brown seaweed," he said.

The professor said a patent had been filed and the research team were now looking for investors and industry partners.

Securing up property against fire

By Sophie Conlon

Eighteen farmers across the Limestone Coast have received grants to help them build Farm Firefighting Units (FFUs) to protect their properties in the event of a fire.

Round two of the Regional Capability Community Fund saw one person each from Wattle Range and Kingston District Councils as well as four people from Tatiara District Council, two from Grant District Council, and 10 from Naracoorte Lucindale Council receive the funding.

The FFU grants support landowners to purchase equipment like water tanks and pumps or first aid kits and personal protective clothing to improve community safety and capability to respond to fire emergencies.

Minister for Emergency Services Joe Szakacs said FFUs were crucial to help farmers keep their loved ones, properties and livestock safe.

"Those that apply for these grants are often the first on the fireground and they must be properly resourced," he said.

The grants were part of the state government's budget promise of $2 million over four years and allow recipients to be reimbursed between $200 to $3,000 for the purchase of eligible equipment.

With almost 200 grants given throughout the state Mr Szakacs said it was great to see so much uptake in the program.

Farmers surrender sheep

By Tyler Redway

Local farmers have begun surrendering their ewes, rams and lambs to shelters and other properties due to growing fears for the upcoming summer season.

This comes following the announcement of an El Nino development for Australia, which is predicted to cause hotter and drier weather nationwide, which has prompted concerns of a limited food supply for farmers to support a full flock.

Limestone Coast saleyard markets have been severely impacted and sheep farmer Dale Price, who has had more than 50 years of experience in breeding Poll Dorset rams, said sheep farmers have taken an income cut between "50 and 60 per cent" compared to the previous year.

However, Mr Price said he had personally been "blessed" by the current season his property was having and was optimistic about making it through summer comfortably.

"It was like this many years ago and it really reflects the sell-off in areas which are affected by current or pending drought at the moment," Mr Price said.

"I am more optimistic, we are in a very fortunate part of Australia and at this point in time our season continues to be good.

"We have a surplus of hay and other feed from previous years so if necessary, we will use that to tide us over during the summer period."

Mr Price said mutton prices are expected to drop by 75 per cent compared to last year while surplus stock of sheep will potentially be $150 cheaper to sell than previous markets.

"The viability of many farmers will start to look pretty sad and the unfortunate thing about it is the people who will be most impacted will be the young farmers who are trying to establish businesses, often with quite a bit of debt, the current interest rates, the decline in income and the cost of production will come together and will make it a very challenging task," he said.

Mr Price said the biggest factor affecting the current issues with feed was the amount of rain in the region, but added it was not a concern for his own flock.

"The other thing which compounds it is the ban of export for live sheep from Western Australia because they don't have the processing capacity over there to handle all of the sheep and it has shaken the confidence of farmers I have been in contact with from Western Australia," he said.

"It has indicated that more people are likely to go out of sheep production and it is an issue because not only does it impact the Western Australian farmers, it will also impact those in the eastern states as well in time.

"Unlike other areas, we are not forced to sell stock due to a lack of feed which is caused by a lack of rain.

"A general rain across Australia would turn the situation around rather quickly, so I am quite confident about that, but of course the El Nino prediction continues to cause concern among producers who have already been hit by the dry season."

Animal Rescue Cooperative (ARC) South Australian coordinator Rebecca Alexander said the orphan lamb rescue farm she managed was being overrun by a large number of lambs and pregnant ewes being surrendered to the property.

Ms Alexander said this caused costs for feed such as hay and lucerne to jump which affected her total budget.

"This year, we have had just over 30 orphan lambs come in, the number varies each year and depends on what farmers go out and check their lambs," Ms Alexander said.

"We also had about 12 pregnant ewes surrendered this season and they have all dropped lambs, whether it has been twins or triplets, so we had at least an extra 25 lambs from them, which luckily they were all great mums to them.

"I think we have used three bulker bags so far, so our food has tripled and we have started feeding them hay earlier than what we would, just because of so many which we have, so we can't sustain them on just grass."

Ms Alexander said one case of surrender in particular was from a farmer who was unable to keep caring for the animals and did not want the lambs to be used at the saleyards or for meat.

"He (the farmer) wanted them to stay as pets so we could potentially find pet homes for them once they had their lambs," she said.

"We couldn't turn them away when he sought us out and really wanted them to come here so we could find the best homes for them.

"We are still a rescue, which usually means short-term care only, so we do have to do adoptions and it is obviously very hard to put out sheep or lambs as pets and to try and do everything we can so they go to pet homes and won't just be sold for meat."

Ms Alexander said she and her husband would be in a "desperate situation" in terms of their own food if they received a continuous number of surrenders, but still welcomed them regardless.

"It's a tricky one because we are self funded, so we are already overstocked on our land as such because we have had all the extra come in this year plus the 30 extra orphaned lambs," she said.

"We are looking at the costs to maintain what we already have because we wouldn't want to take anything we can't afford to feed.

"We want to make sure we still have the funds to care for them, give them food and provide vet expenses because obviously they are quite high as well."

Free activities for the kids

School holidays are set to be a hit in the region with a great line up of free activities planned for young people across Millicent, Penola and Beachport.

The spring edition of the Full Throttle in Wattle school holiday program will see children explore and kayak at Lake Leake, enjoy a movie on the big screen and create bird feeders among other activities. Wattle Range Council's director development services Emma Clay said the program was possible thanks to support from the community.

"Close collaboration between hardworking volunteers, community minded local businesses and Wattle Range Council again makes it possible to deliver such a vibrant and diverse school holiday program," she said.

"As a highlight event we are very excited to be able offer an exploration of Lake Leake and its creatures facilitated by the Limestone Coast Landscape Board, which will be followed by a kayaking session with Lake Leake Kayaks.

"In other opportunities, kids are invited to come and create pet rocks and fairy or dinosaur gardens that glow in the dark at Millicent Mitre 10, try out our Virtual Reality headsets at the Beachport Visitor Information Centre, and in Penola you can head on into Penola Home Hardware to add a pet rock to your family or learn how to make bird seed ornaments for your feathered friends."

Millicent Library manager Janice Nitschke said she was looking forward to the atmosphere the holidays bring to the library.

"The Library will again be buzzing with innovative craft, wooden dioramas and flower planters, jigsaw making, superhero face masks, dinosaur pull-a-longs and magnets," she said.

"Of course, there is always the very popular digital technology, VR headsets and gaming on X-Box and Switch.

"The two-weeks of library activities will be capped off with a session creating a painted pebble Mandala in the Art Gallery."

The entire Full Throttle in Wattle Spring School Holidays Program is available on council's website and bookings are essential through Humanitix or by the Millicent Public Library.

Concerns for increased risk in upcoming fire season

By Aidan Curtis

Forecasts of drier than average conditions has local Country Fire Service (CFS) personnel concerned the Limestone Coast could be in for a rough fire season.

CFS Region 5 Commander Jason Druwitt said having dry conditions in the months ahead will lead to an increased risk of fires.

"CFS is going to be monitoring this closely and taking this into consideration," he said.

"CFS is actively encouraging people to start preparing their properties for the impending fire danger season."

To aid in preparations, Mr Druwitt encouraged South East residents to get a jump start on their bushfire preparedness to reduce the risk to their families and properties.

"Clean around and in your gutters, mow the grass and any fence lines you've got, remove any flammable materials you may have close to your house," he said.

"Having a bushfire survival plan is really essential, whether it's the five-minute plan you can get off the CFS website, or something more in-depth.

"The real key part is, once it's been developed, we really want them to include their whole family in that bushfire plan or part of their preparation as well."

Despite concerns CFS was low on volunteers in the region, Mr Druwitt said numbers had been stable over the last few years, but having more certainly would not hurt.

He said volunteering was just one way people could make an impact and help CFS when it actually came to battling blazes.

"Not only are they volunteering with the Country Fire Service, a great organisation, they're actually volunteering for their community," he said.

"Another really good way is the preparation piece, because when something does start and our crews are out fighting a fire in the landscape, the best thing is if people know what their survival plan is and they've also undertaken preparedness activities.

"When or if there is a fire impact within the community, it's not just about CFS, our community is who we are so to rally around your people in your community and make everybody feel valued."

Mr Druwitt also thanked all current CFS volunteers, along with the families and employers who support them through their duties.

Wine festival fills month

The Coonawarra wine region has a full schedule ahead with the return of the Coonawarra Cabernet Celebrations festival running throughout October.

During the festival, locals and visitors alike will be spoiled for choice with more than 70 events on the books.

Coonawarra Vignerons events and marketing manager Heidi Guyett said there is something for everyone with all the food and wine experiences on offer.

"Our member wineries have gone to great lengths to offer an exciting array of events," Ms Guyett said.

"From family fun days to high-end wine dinners, vertical tastings to blending workshops, winery tours, masterclasses, and long lunches, the region will offer visitors (and locals alike) the opportunity to experience and discover the best of Coonawarra."

For Rymill Cellar Door team leader Tammy Duncan, the month looks to bring family fun to the region so the little ones can get involved too.

"We're looking forward to creating an afternoon of carnival magic, with amazing food from PB's Hot Stuff and Turk Bey Food Truck, live music from Mark and Wendy Moffatt, plus loads of cracking wines and activities for all ages," Ms Duncan said.

"If the kids are entertained, we know it makes an even more enjoyable day out for the parents, and as the wine flows, so does the fun.

"It's a perfect way to kick-start the school holidays and celebrate the long weekend."

The festival officially kicks off from September 29 and runs until October 31.

To view the full program of events, visit the Coonawarra Vignerons website.

There will be a range of food and wine events throughout the Coonawarra wine region this October.

'Every tree is regrown': Deforestation claim rejected

By Charlotte Varcoe

A report into deforestation across the globe has ranked Australia in the top five for average deforestation between 2015 and 2020 despite a decrease in deforestation since 1990.

The Utility Bidder report states within 2015 and 2020, a total of 416,840 hectares of forest was removed from the nation.

This is down by 209,360 hectares from 1990.

Brazil reported the highest deforestation between 2015 and 2020 with 1,695,700 hectares. It also states India has had the highest increase in deforestation between 1990 and 2020 of 284,400 hectares.

Speaking to The Border Watch in response to the report, South Australian Forest Production Association chief executive Nathan Paine rejected the idea of deforestation in Australia stating it was all sustainably sourced.

"When it comes to native harvest of the forest, every tree is regrown and all those crops have been harvested before, sometimes on multiple occasions," Mr Paine said.

South Australian Forest Production Association chief executive Nathan Paine rejected the idea of deforestation in Australia.

"What we do is everytime we harvest a tree we plant it again which is a critical point when we talk about deforestation."

He said on a global scale deforestation needed to cease despite an increase in demand for fibre.

"We have situations such as the end of native harvesting in Victoria and we will import from other countries which are not up to the same ethical standards," Mr Paine said.

"We need to make sure we are not importing someone else's deforestation and make sure we have sustainable fibre into the future."

He said now was the time to plant more trees in the ground to enable the future need for fibre products such as paper, compost or structural framing.

"We need more trees in the ground and that will ensure we have the capability to have all our fibre needs domestically rather than imported where they might not have the same ethics," Mr Paine said.

"We need to make sure we are not importing deforestation and make sure we have the right policy setting to get trees in the ground for the future."

Agriculture Centre opens

Penola High School recently hosted its highly anticipated Open Night, which provided parents and community members with a unique opportunity to explore the newly renovated Agricultural Block (Ag Block).

The event, coordinated by the school's dedicated students, was a resounding success, as it showcased the impressive improvements made to the Ag Block and the students' enthusiasm for their learning environment.

Penola High School opened its doors to parents, guardians, and the local community for an immersive experience within the revamped Ag Block.

The event served as a platform for students to demonstrate their practical skills and knowledge gained through the school's agricultural programs. Penola High School's Open Night was undeniably a success, with parents and community members leaving impressed by the dedication and skills of the students.

The new and improved Ag Block is a testament to the school's commitment to providing a cutting-edge learning environment for its students.

As Penola High School continues to invest in its agricultural programs, it is clear that it is shaping the future of agriculture while nurturing young talent.

We look forward to witnessing the continued growth and success of Penola High School and its students in the field of agriculture.

Thank you to everyone who attended the Open Night and showed their support for this exceptional institution.

Red meat demand surges

Shoppers are increasingly putting red meat in their trolley as retail prices push back against the inflation trend being seen more generally at the supermarket checkout.

This is according to Meat & Livestock Australia (MLA), which provides free and transparent market information and analysis service to the red meat industry. As part of this commitment, MLA has analysed the relationship between prices seen for livestock at the saleyards, and prices of red meat at the shops.

Throughout this year livestock prices for cattle and sheep have declined significantly following historic highs in 2022. While livestock prices have decreased this year, MLA notes that the reduction in average retail price of red meat lags prices paid to producers by approximately eight months. This is due to the amount of supply available, demand for Australian red meat in export markets, and rising input costs through the value chain.

In the previous 12 weeks to 13 August 2023, retail prices for beef and lamb have declined significantly, following a trend that's continued throughout 2023, demonstrating that the fall in livestock prices has started to impact the price paid at the checkout.

Retail prices and demand

The performance of Australian lamb and beef in the domestic market remains solid, with both proteins growing in sales volume and overall value. When comparing the last quarter with the same period last year, value growth for beef is 1.8 per cent and for lamb is 4.2 per cent.

Data from NielsenIQ HomeScan shows a 7.3 per cent reduction in the price consumers are paying for lamb compared to a year ago, which is supporting a 12.4 per cent increase in volume of lamb purchased at the cash register.

According to Nathan Low, General Manager of Marketing and Insights at MLA, lamb has seen a boom in purchases in recent months, as consumers notice its falling price and jump on the opportunity to purchase a high quality and nutritious protein.

"The price reduction is translating to increased purchasing frequency for several cuts," Mr Low said.

"This is especially the case for the most popular cuts like lamb legs and chops, which are up 20 per cent compared to one year ago.

"Consumers see these price reductions and purchase more as a result. As this happens, retailers are looking to bring in customers with competitive pricing through catalogue promotions, and increased stock on the shelf," Mr Low said.

For beef, NielsenIQ is reporting 7.1 per cent growth in volume in the last quarter, compared to the same period last year, with an average retail price decrease of 4.9 per cent. Frequency of purchase and volume per purchase

While livestock prices have decreased this year, MLA notes that the reduction in average retail price of red meat lags prices paid to producers by approximately eight months. Picture: SVEN BRANDSMA/UNSPLASH are both up in the latest quarter as well.

"Consumer perception of beef and lamb is strong," Mr Low said.

"Tracking by Kantar, commissioned by MLA on behalf of industry, said that consumers see both beef and lamb as increasingly worth paying more for due to their high quality and taste."

Relationship between livestock and retail meat prices

Historically, data on supply, pricing and consumer demand shows that it takes about eight months for livestock prices to translate to the retail shelf.

The last time in recent history that beef prices dropped considerably was in 2012, with the lag to shelf arriving eight months later, with those lower prices remaining for about nine months.

For lamb, which has seen a drop in prices in the fourth quarter of the calendar year every year since 2018, it experienced significant price drops in 2012-13 and 2016-2018. Correspondingly at this time, retail pricing took about nine months to fall.

According to Mr Low, there are a variety of factors that drive pricing in the retail market, as well as additional supply chain pressures occurring currently.

"Livestock prices are only one component of retail meat prices," he said. "Producing retail meat requires investment in energy costs, transport and freight costs, labour costs, packaging and disposal costs, retailer margins, processor margins, PPE and hygiene, all of which have increased in price over the last year, along with almost everything else.

"This is important to remember when considering when livestock prices increased as they did to historical highs last year. When saleyard prices were at those highs a year ago, retail prices increased but not at the same rate.

"What we are seeing now is that same trend, just in the opposite direction. Consumers need a degree of certainty for their shopping basket and retailers smooth the retail pricing impact over the longer term, rather than sharply increase or decrease the price of meat in accordance with livestock prices."

Championing red meat

Australians who are passionate about the red meat industry are being sought for the next round of the highly successful Red Meat Ambassador program.

The program is run by Meat & Livestock Australia and is now taking expressions for interest for a series of courses to be run later in 2023 and the first half of 2024.

The Red Meat Ambassador program is an intensive development opportunity that offers participants professional training in communication through media and social media, community engagement and building trust with consumers.

MLA industry engagement manager Lindsay Kasprovicz said the program continues to be highly rated by participants, with more than 300 people now equipped with the skills to effectively tell the great story of Australian red meat production.

"When it comes to areas that matter most to consumers – animal welfare, sustainability and nutrition – Australian red meat stands out as having the highest standards and quality in the world," Ms Kasprovicz said.

"The ambassadors program is all about equipping passionate people with the confidence and skills to engage with people outside of agriculture to help grow the community's confidence in our industry's credentials."

MLA will deliver seven Ambassadors workshops in the 2023-24 financial year, with one in Adelaide on February 28-29, 2024.

"Participants will gain new skills to effectively communicate with consumers about red meat production, industry sustainability, and best practice farming," Ms Kasprovicz said.

"MLA's consumer sentiment research shows our industry has great support from the Australian community, but we need to be proactive in reaching out and engaging with them. This program will equip our industry's finest to do just that."

Emergency drinking water requests up 250 per cent

Rural Aid has experienced a drastic increase in the number of drinking water requests from Australian farmers.

The charity has been delivering water tank refills to registered primary producing families for a number of years.

In the past year, drinking water requests have increased by 250 per cent.

Rural Aid chief executive officer John Warlters said dry times have hit early and hit hard.

"Farmers around the country have been unsettled by how quickly the rain 'tap' has been turned off," Mr Warlters said.

"In June last year, Rural Aid received six requests for a water tank refill. In June this year, Rural Aid received 21 requests for a water tank refill.

"It's a huge increase and shows that the pain of low rainfall is already being felt in the bush.

"Rural Aid believes no Australian farmer should live without access to clean drinking water."

In addition to paying for water carters to deliver fresh drinking water to farmers, Rural Aid also runs a tank delivery program.

In the past year alone, Rural Aid has delivered 163 water tanks to primary producing households across Australia.

Victorian dairy farmer Mark Laity said the water tank he received from Rural Aid was a huge boost.

In the past five years, he's faced severe drought, life-threatening bushfires and floods on his East Gippsland property.

Mark and his family ran out of drinking water in the drought.

"There was no water left here at all, not even a drop in any of the dams, they were all bone dry. The creek stopped running; the whole lot," Mark said.

He thanked Rural Aid for his tank, which provided much needed water security.

More time for sheep report

An extension has been granted to the independent panel overseeing advice on how and when the government will phase out live sheep exports by sea.

Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry, Murray Watt agreed to the panel's request for a short extension to enable them to complete their research, deliberations and recommendations.

"My priority has always been, and continues to be, ensuring the phase out occurs in an orderly way, and this includes proper planning," Minister Watt said.

"Since consultation started in March the panel have received more than 800 written submissions and over 3300 survey responses.

"They've also listened to diverse stakeholder perspectives at public forums in person and online.

"With the volume and range of consultation information now known, and the commissioned work now received, the panel has requested a short extension to wrap up the analysis.

"I acknowledge the panel's commitment to providing recommendations on a pathway forward, and I commend their diligence to honing the report during the coming months.

Minister Watt confirmed the end date for the phase would not happen during this term of parliament.

"We know farmers and other industry participants need time to prepare for the pathway forward," he said.

"The report is vital to developing a considered and orderly implementation plan that advances animal welfare, examines the needs of impacted individuals, business and local communities and identifies opportunities for future sheep industry growth.

"I thank all stakeholders who provided input into how and when the phase out should be implemented, including what's needed to seize new opportunities, such as expanding onshore processing and exporting more of our high-quality sheep meat to the world."

More information about the phase out of live sheep exports by sea, is available on the Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry website.

The independent panel is chaired by former chief executive of the Murray Darling Basin Authority and senior public servant, Phillip Glyde.

The panel also includes Western Australian agriculture expert Ms Sue Middleton, former federal minister the Hon Warren Snowdon, and former RSPCA CEO Ms Heather Neil.

The panel will provide its report to the Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry by 25 October.

'Too much': Farm insurance pushed through the roof

Farmers for Climate Action, an organisation representing more than 8000 Australian farmers, says two recent insurance reports have laid bare the rising cost of climate change inaction.

Research by the Actuaries Institute released earlier this month says the median home insurance premiums are up 28 per cent in the year to March 31, the biggest increase in 20 years.

People in flood prone areas are facing price hikes of up to 50 per cent.

The actuaries noted that part of the increase was due to higher building supply costs, but it was also "driven by climate change impacts we're already seeing."

This follows a recent report by consumer group Choice, which found 87 per cent of policyholders in Australia have seen insurance premiums rise, and two in five people reported having their homes impacted by an extreme weather event in the last five years.

Ulmarra farmer Peter Lake says climate change has made floods on his northern New South Wales farm more frequent and severe, and made his farm insurance unaffordable.

"We've dealt with major floods in 2009, 2011, 2013, and 2021 but nothing could have prepared us for February 2022. We lost fences and fodder and were forced to sell most of our stock. Even when the waters receded we were flood free but not mud free. We battled mud for months," he said.

Since then the member of Farmers for Climate Action has seen his insurance bill skyrocket.

"I was quoted $19,000 per year to insure my farm which is just too much. We've had to weigh up not insuring our farm equipment, sheds and fences. We're only insuring the house and a horse float now," Mr Lake said.

"To stop the costs of climate change going higher we need urgent action to reduce emissions, including from coal, oil and gas, right now, this decade."

Insurance for rural properties has skyrocketed according to recent reports.

Chinese Pork Open Omelette

Prep time: 15 minutes

Cook time: 25 minutes

Makes: 4 Omelettes

Difficulty: Easy

Ingredients:

Sauce

- 2 tablespoons light soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons hoisin sauce
- 1 teaspoon sesame oil
- 1 chicken stock cube, crumbled
- 1 cup (250ml) water
- 1 tablespoon cornflour

Omelette

- ¼ cup vegetable oil
- 3 cloves garlic, crushed
- 1½ tablespoons ginger paste
- 300g pork mince
- 100g white mushrooms, chopped
- 2 cups (160g) shredded Chinese cabbage
- 3 green onions, shredded, plus extra for garnish
- 2 cups (110g) bean sprouts, plus extra to serve
- 8 eggs
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons toasted sesame seeds

Method:

Sauce

1. Combine soy, hoisin, sesame oil, stock cube and water into a saucepan. Bring to a boil, stirring over a medium heat for 2 minutes. Add cornflour and cook for 3 minutes or until sauce thickens to a thin gravy consistency.

Omelette

1. Heat 1 tbsp oil in a small non-stick frying pan. Add garlic and ginger. Cook, stirring, for 30 seconds or until fragrant. Add pork mince and cook, stirring, using a wooden spoon to break up any lumps until browned. Add mushrooms and cabbage and cook, stirring, for 4-5 minutes or until softened.
2. Add green onions and sprouts and cook a further 2-3 minutes. Remove from heat and place in a heatproof bowl. Set aside and keep warm. Wipe pan clean.
3. Whisk eggs together and season with salt.
4. Heat 2 teaspoons of oil in the same pan over medium heat. Add ¼ of the egg mixture and cook for 2-3 minutes, tilting the pan to form a round omelette. Turn over and cook for a further 1 minute or until the egg is set. Turn out onto a plate. Repeat with the remaining oil and eggs to make four omelettes.
5. To serve, spoon pork and vegetable mixture on top of omelettes. Drizzle over sauce. Garnish with extra sprouts and green onions. Scatter with sesame seeds.

TIPS:

- Pork mince can be replaced with peeled green prawns or chicken mince.

YOUR WEEKLY TV GUIDE

PARADISE KITCHEN BALI SBS Food, Thursday, 9pm

No matter what your association with the tropical paradise Bali, this tantalising culinary journey is set to redefine the way you see the tourist destination's food and culture. Balinese-Australian chef Lauren Camilleri (pictured) is our guide on this tasty tour of the exotic island. Each episode of the energetic series sees Camilleri focus on a different ingredient, sharing age-old recipes and innovative techniques for preparing fresh produce. In tonight's second episode, the humble coconut is transformed as the passionately plant-based Camilleri and Mokska chef Made Runatha recreate a calamari dish using coconut flesh, with a result that promises to give your taste buds a new lease on life.

ROCK LEGENDS: TINA TURNER SBS, Saturday, 9.10pm

Late singing legend Tina Turner is one of the most iconic, important and beloved recording artists of all time. This respectful but fairly straightforward biography traces the star's life and career, from her troubled upbringing to her fateful meeting with the volatile Ike Turner to her triumphant comeback in the 1980s and beyond. With a group of British music journalists on hand to serve as commentators, we follow the ups and downs of the superstar's life, with plenty of archival footage and music video clips in between. It's a great introduction for those who might not know too much about Turner's iconic story.

SHARK TANK 10, Tuesday, 7.30pm

History is made in tonight's episode of this reality TV series as one of the entrepreneurs hits the ultimate jackpot: a life-changing investment of $1 million to take their invention to the next level. Will it be Danielle Paraha with her kooky contraption to control chickens? Or 13-year-olds Myla Tucker and Liv Lorenz with their sustainable swimwear range? Also in the running is Pascal Ward, with his system to test out tattoos before getting inked, and condom creator Kat Hanzelek with her business designed to make women feel more comfortable with intimate protection. Lastly, Susan Toft pitches her Uber-style pick-up service for people to get their laundry done. Who will impress sharks Sabri Suby, Dr Catriona Wallace, Davie Fogarty, Jane Lu and Robert Herjavec (pictured, from left) to rise above the pack?

WHAT'S ON THE BOX?

PICK OF THE WEEK

THE AMAZING RACE AUSTRALIA 10, Wednesday, 7.30pm

If you're a fan of watching celebrities slum it in the jungle for I'm a Celebrity... Get Me Out of Here!, this star-studded version of the reality format might be for you. Ripped from their luxurious lives and thrust into backpacker accommodation, budget hotels and even economy class, 11 celebrity racers and their loved ones are about to get a masterclass in how the other other half travel. Former Wiggles Emma Watkins, model and TV presenter Bec Judd, Gold Logie winner Grant Denyer, former Olympian Jana Pittman and comedian Peter Rowsthorn are among those taking up host Beau Ryan's challenge - who will be the first to tap out?

Up for a challenge: Grant Denyer and wife Chezzi take on The Amazing Race: Celebrity Edition.

CX-60 rewrites rulebook

By Derek Ogden, Marque Motoring

It appears the CX-60 has inveigled its way into the Mazda sports utility vehicle family with the bearing of an imperious European aristocrat.

Indeed, an industry specialist who deals with vehicle brands daily says, at first sight, the CX-60 reminded him a lot of a Jaguar.

Mazda makes no bones about taking the Yellow Brick Road to a spot 'over the rainbow' inhabited by the best mid-size SUVs around and the CX-60 debuts with three sophisticated new powertrains - inline-six turbocharged petrol and diesel engines, in mild hybrid guise, plus Mazda's first plug-in hybrid.

In keeping with Mazda's Premium philosophy there are three highly specified grades - Evolve, GT and Azami - which can be customised further with safety and styling option packs.

The Azami test car included the SP Pack, adding even more luxury to the car's character inside and out.

Naturally, this new-found Mazda style and sophistication come at a cost: $75,000 if you want the test car equivalent.

In contrast, the similar grade cousin CX-5 peaks at around $55,000.

The flagship CX-60 petrol Azami is the first Mazda plug-in hybrid - the e-SkyActiv PHEV - which tips the scales at $85,500.

Full range is covered by Mazda's five-year unlimited kilometre warranty, with roadside assistance, and five years of fixed price servicing.

Mazda CX-60 Azami G40e SP M Hybrid is a handsome beast, worthy of the segment known as Japanese Premium.

Mazda never tires of telling us about traditional Kodo design principles and the new CX-60 is no exception.

Finished in Machine Grey Metallic, the test car, with front-engine and rear-biased all-wheel drive, exhibited a powerful connection to the road.

The long bonnet provided more than ample cover for the workings of the in-line six-cylinder petrol engine, which was designated by a dark 'In-line 6' signature on both wings.

Rear combination lights provided signature illumination.

The SP option pack, with 20-inch alloy wheels in black metallic finish, dark-coloured side signature front bumper with gloss black honeycomb-type grille, gloss black exterior mirror and LED headlamps with dark signature was well worth the $2000 extra.

'Clubby' can best describe the cabin.

Luxury surroundings are matched by space, especially in the back, with the panoramic sunroof opening up the area.

Major leg and toe room complement the soft leather feel.

As with the CX-60 Azami exterior finish, the SP pack added a suede-style dashboard panel, tan Nappa leather seat trim and contrasting stitching, plus a matching two-tone steering wheel.

Boot room is 407 litres with the rear set-backs raised and 477 with them folded (not quite flat). A hands-free remote operated power tailgate does the job when loading / unloading.

While the 12.3-inch infotainment screen is new, it is still controlled by a knob/joystick behind the gearshift and not the touchscreen while on the move.

I'm a fan.

At rest the screen comes to life, by touch, with Mazda Connect.

Satellite navigation and digital radio are included and there is a 12.3-inch TFT LCD multi-information meter, plus a head-up windscreen display.

The Driver Personalisation System, another Mazda innovation, debuts, making it easy for drivers to achieve their ideal driving position.

The new Mazda CX-60 has a bearing beyond its mid-range roots.

Entering their height via the infotainment centre display, the automatic driving position camera detects the location of the eyes and automatically adjusts the seat, steering wheel, active driving display and door mirrors to match the driver's eye position.

The system uses facial recognition to remember each driver's preferences.

Once the driver is detected, the Mazda CX-60 automatically restores more than 250 stored settings.

Premium Bose audio system boasts 12 speakers.

The six-cylinder 3.3-litre turbocharged petrol and diesel engines are both first-timers, with each utilising Mazda's 48V mild hybrid boost technology.

The large capacity improves efficiency with the higher volume of air enabling more complete combustion and a wider lean-burn range leading to lower fuel use and reduced nitrogen oxide emissions.

All engines in the range are mated with a newly developed Skyactiv-Drive eight-speed automatic transmission.

The CX-60 recently won a five-star ANCAP rating thanks to such things as adaptive cruise control, autonomous emergency braking, pedestrian and cyclist detection, junction assist (turn-across traffic), blind-spot monitoring, driver attention monitoring, forward obstruction warning, high beam control (auto high-beam), lane-keep assist, parking sensors front and rear, cross-traffic alert, surround camera, traffic sign recognition, tyre pressure monitoring and vehicle exit warning.

Azami adds adaptive LED headlights, cruising and traffic support, adaptive cruise plus lane centring, front cross-traffic alert, 360-degree cameras, including see-through view.

The CX-60 'wears' 10 airbags, including front-centre airbag across the range.

The Driver Personalisation System, another Mazda innovation, debuts, making it easy for drivers to achieve their ideal driving position.

Entering their height via the infotainment centre display, camera detects the location of the eyes and automatically adjusts the seat, steering wheel, active driving display and door mirrors to match the optimum position.

The system uses facial recognition to remember each driver's preferences.

Once the driver is detected, the Mazda CX-60 automatically restores more than 250 stored settings.

The e-Skyactiv turbo petrol engine is smooth and responsive, using a wider gear range that delivers a balance between driving and environmental performance.

However, the stubby gearshift lever requires firm action between 'park' and 'drive' positions.

The ride's a bit lumpy too.

The use of a clutch in place of a torque converter is said to produce clean switching between gears, at the same time enabling accurate control of the hybrid boost electric motor in the 48V mild hybrid system.

Mazda claims fuel consumption of 7.4 litres per 100 kilometres on the urban/highway cycle.

In city and suburbs, with i-Stop in action, the test CX-60 clocked up 9.6 litres per 100 kilometres and 8.8 litres per 100 kilometres when let loose on the motorway.

Mazda CX-60's unique composition, with front-engine and rear-biased all-wheel drive give you a feeling of stability and confidence with a powerful connection to the road.

Mi-Drive modes - Normal, Sport, Off-road and towing - bring a unique versatility to the CX-60.

There's much (too much in this space) to say about the mid-size five-seat CX-60 and most of it is good.

The innovation and styling, plus little luxuries, have the CX-60 vaulting into the premium SUV segment.

Pity the price bar might be a bit too high for some.

Murphies hold out for flag

By Trevor Jackson

UNDER 14 MIXED – GLENCOE 2.11 (23) d PORT MACDONNELL 2.1 (13)

Glencoe claimed the first grand final of the Mid South East football 2023 season, with a 10-point victory over Port MacDonnell.

Played in good conditions at Port MacDonnell, the game panned out as a tough contest for the first half.

The Murphies took the early lead with two minor scores to one in the opening term.

However, the Demons fought back in the second and added a major score to go three points up at the half-time break.

From there the Murphies pulled away, despite some inaccurate kicking in front of goal.

Glencoe added two goals and six behinds in the third term to regain the lead with a nine-point advantage heading into the final stanza.

It was the dominant possession which made the difference, as the Demons added one goal, but still had plenty to do in the final quarter.

Unfortunately they could not add to their score, while Glencoe only put on one more behind but had done enough in the third term to claim the premiership.

Sam Haase kicked both of Glencoe's goals, while the Demons majors were shared between Jett Lewis and Tyler Neale.

Kallan Price, Hamish Gordon, Haase, Tighe Hurley, Kade Mulraney and Leslie Jagger were named best for the victors, while Harry Carroll, Kane Gilbert, Patrick Clarke, Zane Lewis, Charlie Carroll and Naite Fox were best for Port MacDonnell.

CHAMPIONS: Glencoe captains Kallan Price and Tighe Hurley raise the premiership rewards.

FINAL SIREN: Glencoe players celebrate while the disappointment is clear for their Port MacDonnell opponents.

PREMIERS: Glencoe Under 14 Mixed players celebrate their Mid South East football premiership. Pictures: JAMES MURPHY

BEST ON GROUND: Glencoe's Kallan Price was named best on ground in the grand final.

IN FRONT: Glencoe's Thomas Richards takes the front position.

FOCUSED: Glencoe's Samuel Haase takes possession and looks for an option.

Strong field on the green

Ideal conditions attracted a strong field of 43 for the Millicent Bowls Club 2-4-2 last week.

The winning team consisted of Frank Cooper and Kym Stewart with a score of 36+18 shots up.

Runners-up were David Botting and John Buhlmann with a score of 34+19.

Other winning teams were Mary Campbell/Peter Scanlon 32+12; Garry Wilson/Andre Reinders 31+14; Denis Clifford/Neil Whelan 31+7; John Madden/Peter Varcoe 31+3; David Reichelt/Ian Ross 30+18; Jan Buhlmann/Robert Coote/Jim Campbell 30+13; Ros Varcoe/John Drew 29+6; John Eldridge/Lyn Scudds 28+3.

Winners Kym Stewart and Frank Cooper.

Championship places set

COLD, wet and windy conditions faced championship hopefuls in the Millicent Golf Club's women's grade and club championships last week.

Quarter and semi-finals were conducted to qualify for the championships this week over 36 holes.

After a big day on the course the final placings were set, with Kirsty Bailey to face Helen Chilton in A Grade.

In B Grade, Debbie Tincknell will take on Heather Anderson, while Bec Shanks and Julie McKenzie will fight for the C Grade honours.

Picture perfect course

Fast greens and good fairways were welcomed by 72 SE Veterans golfers for their latest round at Naracoorte.

The Monfries and Porter trophy, a long-standing tradition for the group, was played on a course presented in excellent condition.

Darren Earl claimed first division on a count-back from Bill Mullan, both with 37 points.

Brian Foreman finished third with 36 points.

In second division Derek Bowering claimed them win with 36 points, from John Kirby 35 and Bruce Packer 33.

Nearest the pins were Peter Edwards and Foreman, while the Ross Orchard trophy was taken by Ian Todd and Simon Browning.

The ball rundown required 29 points or more to claim a ball.

Glen Hamlyn was the only local to score anything, grabbing the Scotch.

The next outing is at Penola on October 9, followed by Beachport on October 23.

DROUGHT BREAKING: Kalangadoo players celebrate after their historic Mid South East football Reserves grand final victory on Saturday.

Magpies break drought

By Trevor Jackson

RESERVES – KALANGADOO 13.4 (82) d
HATHERLEIGH 10.5 (65)

A barnstorming second term saw Kalangadoo Reserves come from behind to break a long-standing a Mid South East football premiership drought on Saturday at Port MacDonnell.

The Magpies faced a tough Hatherleigh roster and had not won a premiership for 40 years.

They were tardy out of the blocks, as the Eagles took a 14-point lead to the first break and a drought-breaker looked a long way off.

However, the Magpies found momentum in the second quarter and ran with for the remainder of the game.

With six major scores to just two for the Eagles, Kalangadoo closed the margin and drew ahead to the tune of 12 points and continued to stretch the margin after the main break.

Both sides used their possession up forward well, with accurate kicking in front of the big sticks, but it was the Magpies who reaped the benefits in the third quarter with an extra major score to head to the final term with a 17-point buffer.

That was by no means comfortable, as Hatherleigh kicked the first goal of the final term to close the margin to just 10 points.

However, with both sides adding one goal and two behinds to their tallies before the siren sounded, the Magpies celebrated with a well-deserved premiership flag.

Ben Mules was in fine form up forward for the victors, with four major scores, while Tyler Jones (3), Chris Mules (2) and Jacob Simmonds (2) also kicking multiple goals.

For Hatherleigh, Jason Faulkner and Harvey Jones kicked two majors each.

Simmonds, Ben Mules, Nathan Reeves, Jonathan Mules, Justin Mansell and Dylan Barlow were best for Kalangadoo, while Ayden Reid, Matthew Fabris, Faulkner, Josh Wight, Ethan Bowman and Sidney Reeves were best for Hatherleigh.

UNDER 17.5 – ROBE 18.13 (121) d
PORT MACDONNELL 10.3 (63)

Robe's Under 17.5 boys defied the odds and came from fourth place on the ladder to claim the Mid South East football premiership on Saturday.

Despite giving up the home-ground advantage to Port MacDonnell, the Roosters were always in control, with a strong opening term setting the scene.

While the Demons kicked one goal and one behind, the Roosters banged off five major scores and three minors to hold an early 26-point advantage.

The second quarter produced plenty of goals for spectators, with 11 kicked in total and six of those to the Roosters.

The margin had blown out to 33 points at the main break and the Demons had a tough task ahead.

The third quarter put the game to bed, as the Demons could only muster a solitary behind, while Robe continued the onslaught with another six major scores.

While Port MacDonnell won the final term, with four major scores to one, the game was already beyond them and the Roosters celebrated.

In the high-scoring final, there were plenty of goals for the forwards to enjoy.

Max Robertson kicked seven for Robe, Daniel Nunan six and Nathan Gibbons four.

For the Demons, Zeb Chant banged on five, while Brodie Anderson kicked two.

Robertson, Nunan, Gibbons, Flynn Peel and Kaiden Carter were best for Robe, with Chant, Patrick Robinson, Zaylen Smith and Kurtis Laslett best for Port MacDonnell.

Robertson was named best on ground by the officials.

Quick start seals the deal

17 AND UNDER - MOUNT BURR 57 d TANTANOOLA 45

The opening two quarters set up the win for Mount Burr in the Mid South East netball 17 and Under grand final on Saturday.

Mount Burr won the toss and despite strong pressure by Tantanoola scored the first goal. Settling first, the Mozzies pushed out to an early three-goal lead, with Ashlee Dean strong in the circle and shooting accurately.

Unforced errors crept into the game, with both sides seeming to struggle with nerves.

Strong work by the Mozzies in the mid-court forced Tantanoola into unforced errors and as a result they pushed out to an eight-goal lead at the first break.

In the second quarter Dean was again a focal point in the circle, shooting accurately.

Tantanoola goal shooter Bella Poulsh had many opportunities, but Mount Burr goal defence Tilly Gamble made it difficult for Ebony Cytrowski to take possession in the circle, as the Mozzies stretched their lead further by the main break.

The third quarter was a well contested by both sides and despite the heat, they continued to play a fast-paced game.

Centre-court players worked hard for their respective teams, driving to the circle edge to give front feeds to their goalies.

Despite positional changes by the Tigers, Mount Burr was able to maintain consistency. Mount Burr centre Ella Easterby played a solid game, controlling the mid-court.

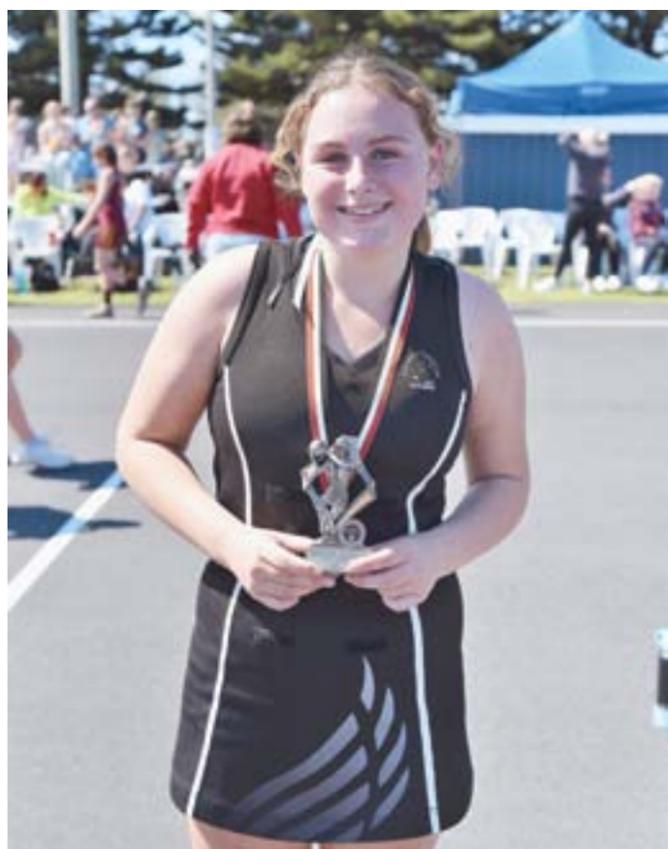

Both teams started to make errors due to fatigue and the continual defensive pressure all over the court.

Mount Burr's Macy Burns and Tantanoola's Molly Cushion created turnovers in the last part of the game, which kept the final quarter margin down to two goals.

In the end Mount Burr's quick start helped them to a 12-goal win.

In2 Trophies best on court went to Ella Easterby.

Strong quarter sets up the victory for Kalangadoo

13 AND UNDER - KALANGADOO 41 d GLENCOE 28

Kalangadoo was too strong in the youngest of the Mid South East netball grand finals on Saturday, with a 41-28 victory over Glencoe.

Both teams began the game nervously, with each team forcing errors to turn the ball over.

The defenders made it difficult for feeders to get the ball into the circle and in a tight first-quarter tussle, Kalangadoo narrowly edged out Glencoe to go into the first break with a one-goal advantage.

That changed in the second quarter, with Kalangadoo's Molly Peacock able to read the play and pick off easy passes to return the ball into the Magpies' circle.

Goalers Matilda Peacock and Emmity McElroy converted every opportunity to give their team a strong 21-10 lead at the half-time break.

Glencoe's Annabelle Gordon continuously intercepted defence passes to try and keep the Murphies in the game.

As a result the third and fourth quarters were more even, with Kalangadoo's Ava Proserpi-Porta playing a controlled game through the centre court.

Glencoe's Isabella Brierley battled hard all game to make it tough for Kalangadoo's centre court to feed the ball easily.

Glencoe continued to fight it out to the end in the final quarter, with Ella Stewart shooting eight goals without a miss.

However, Kalangadoo was able to keep its strong second-quarter lead to finish the game with a 13-goal margin and the premiership flag.

In2 Trophies best on court went to Ava Proserpi-Porta.

A GRADE - KALANGADOO 66 d TANTANOOLA 40

Kalangadoo claimed a strong Mid South East netball premiership over Tantanoola on Saturday, despite an even start to the contest.

The Magpies won the toss and scored the first goal through Ebony McDiarmid, but Tantanoola settled with a long-range shot from Keryl Ousey.

A Tantanoola missed shot was rebounded by Kalangadoo and they capitalised.

Tantanoola's goalies Emma Gould and Ousey were shooting confidently and they were the first to settle, pushing out to a three-goal lead early in the quarter.

However, Kalangadoo showed its finals experience to level the scores at the five-minute mark.

Lauren Kain turned over Tantanoola's centre pass and Abbey Duncan converted through a long-range shot.

Tantanoola wing defence Casey Walker applied plenty of pressure on youngster Chloe Peacock, but patience in the Kalangadoo forward half was rewarded with goals, giving them a three-goal lead at quarter time.

McDiarmid once again scored the first goal of the second quarter despite hard work in defence by Tantanoola.

As the game progressed the Tigers struggled with their transition through the mid-court and despite plenty of hard work defensively, Kalangadoo missed only one goal for the quarter to push out to a 16-goal lead at the main break.

At half time the Tigers made wholesale changes across the board, with Ousey into goal keeper, Jamie Walker into goal attack, Emma Gould to goal shooter, Casey Walker to wing attack, Kate Bromley to wing defence and Tayla Rowe to goal defence.

This seemed to unsettle the Magpies' shooting end, with both goalies missing a number of shots.

However, rebounds did not go in the Tigers' favour and the Magpies pushed out their lead to 23 at the final break.

The Tigers battled hard throughout the last term and ensured the lead did not blow out much more, but the damage had been done in the middle two quarters.

In the end Kalangadoo claimed its 25th premiership after 30 continuous grand final appearances.

15 AND UNDER - KALANGADOO 67 d HATHERLEIGH 30

A solid four-quarter effort by Kalangadoo gave them the Mid South East netball 15 and Under premiership on Saturday, with a 37-goal victory over Hatherleigh.

Hatherleigh won the toss, but Kalangadoo broke the pass and settled to shoot the first five goals of the game in quick succession.

Hatherleigh took a while to settle.

Chloe Peacock was solid for the Magpies and her goalies Shayden Russell and Lucy Egan shot with accuracy.

Hannah Bellinger worked hard at goal defence for the Eagles for the whole four quarters, while Kalli Nettle worked overtime in the shooting circle.

However, overall Kalangadoo had more experience, with strong leadership from Peacock, to win by 37.

Roosters far too strong

A RESERVE - ROBE 45 d KALANGADOO 30

Robe was simply too strong for Kalangadoo in the Mid South East netball A Reserve grand final on Saturday, claiming a comfortable 15-goal victory.

In the first quarter both teams played with nerves, but it did not take long for the Roosters to find their feet.

Robe defenders Kim Austin and Alannah Jennings made it difficult for the Kalangadoo goalies to find their range in the circle and took many intercepts, limiting the Magpies' goalies to just three for the quarter.

In contrast, Robe's attacking end worked hard to keep possession of the ball and moved the ball into the circle confidently, with 13 goals to take a strong early lead.

In the second quarter Kalangadoo came back fighting.

Defenders Reanna Wetherall and Georgia Duncan put pressure on the Robe shooters and used their ability to confidently read the play to get turnovers.

Melissa Russell came on in goal shooter, moving well in the circle and creating more scoring opportunities for Kalangadoo.

The Robe mid-courtiers put the pressure on down the court, Keryn Moore, Jennings and Kim Ross getting deflections in the transitions.

The Roosters went into the break with an 12-goal lead.

In the third quarter, Robe's goalies started with confidence, Ash Hunt and Sarah Laurie playing strongly in the circle.

for every shot and continued the pressure throughout the mid-court.

Shanae Neale entered the game at wing defence for the Magpies and youngster Georgia Gentile moved to centre.

Robe also replaced Kerryn Moore with Maisie Hayes at wing defence.

Both Ross and Gentile ran hard during the quarter to get plenty of the ball.

It was the most even quarter of the game, with eight goals scored by each side.

Emilie Gould came on with fresh legs at the three-quarter time break and the whole Robe team played the quarter with determination and grit.

Both teams fought until the end, but Robe increased its lead to take out the game by 15.

In2 Trophies best on court went to Alannah Jennings.

Two-goal victory in overtime

B GRADE - KALANGADOO 44 d ROBE 42

In the tightest contest of the Mid South East netball grand final day, Kalangadoo managed to squeeze out an overtime win over Robe in the B Grade match.

Robe had much of the play in the first quarter, but failed to capitalise on its opportunities, being one down at quarter time.

The second quarter went much along the same lines, with hard defensive work by Emily Mulraney combining well with Demi Ingley to restrict opportunities for Robe's goalies.

It resulted in an even quarter, with still just one goal favouring Kalangadoo at the main break.

The Roosters made changes at halftime which unsettled them in the third, losing the quarter by six.

That was important in the scheme of the game, as Kalangadoo took a seven-goal advantage to the final stanza.

In the last term Robe moved Ella Mackey to centre, brought Amy Weatherall on at goal shooter and Libby Yeo to goal attack.

It appeared to work as the Roosters pegged the lead back to even the score at full time.

In the end Kalangadoo took the win by two goals in overtime.

Going down to the wire

B RESERVE - HATHERLEIGH 43 d MOUNT BURR 38

HATHERLEIGH and Mount Burr faced off in the Mid South East netball B Reserve grand final, with the game close until the very end.

Mount Burr had an early lead, with goalies Sophie Jankowski and Karen Hayward shooting with accuracy, going into the first break with a four-goal advantage.

Changes were made by both teams with Sally Bateman entering the court at centre for the Eagles and Mia Grant at wing defence for Mount Burr.

The defensive line-up for both teams fought hard for every possession, converting with ease through their accurate goal shooters.

Dawn Smith and Bec Fox applied intense pressure to Hatherleigh's goalies, limiting their rebounding opportunities.

The Eagles fought hard in the second quarter to have a five-goal turn around, sending them into the half-time break with a one-goal lead.

The second half saw a defensive change for both teams and the Mozzies moved Ava Smith-Muhovics into goal attack, with Hayward going to the bench.

The change had impact for the Mozzies,

Smith-Muhovics using her accuracy in the goal circle to shoot the majority of the goals for her team in the second half.

Hatherleigh extended its lead further in the third quarter, with Eliza Burton shooting 12 of the 16 goals for the Eagles.

Mount Burr fought hard in the last quarter, only missing one goal between the two goalies, but Hatherleigh had put in the hard work in the middle two quarters to come away with the win.

In2 Trophies best on court went to Eliza Burton.

Club gears up for season

The Penola Bowling Club is a busy place, as members prepare for the 2023-24 bowls season.

Wednesday afternoon social bowls games are attended by an increasing number of bowlers as the days warm up, while last weekend saw the Casterton/Penola Challenge held.

The day saw 50 bowlers play three games of six ends each, with one game before a barbecue lunch was enjoyed.

After lunch a closest-to-the-ditch competition was held, which went to Roger Gibbs, followed by the final two games.

Winners were Gary Russell from Casterton, Lyn Brodie from Penola, Wendy Lowe from Penola and Pat Wombell of Casterton.

With the day deemed a success, the intention is to hold it as an annual event, to be held in Casterton in September next year.

The club is holding several events over the next few weeks, with the major one a wine day on Sunday, October 1, sponsored by Bendigo Bank, Peter Thompson Wines and T.D.C.

The Friday Teas continue to be held on the second Friday every month, while night bowls will commence on Wednesday November 15, with a barbecue tea followed by a game of bowls.

It will run for five weeks prior to Christmas and will continue again towards the end of January. It is open to any member of the public who is interested in a game of bowls.

The club has bowls available to any one who may not own a set.

John Davidson, Ian Hetherington, Ron Hunter and Don Messenger discuss the upcoming bowling season.

Eagles outstanding players celebrated

She finished the recent league best and fairest count in runner-up for the grade and was aptly named Penola's best and fairest on Friday night.

Kim Wilson was runner-up and Hannah Klemm received the most consistent award.

The B Grade awards had Jess Blackmore on top, unsurprisingly after her recent league best and fairest win.

Runner-up best and fairest was Teegan Galpin, while the most consistent award was shared between joint winners Sarah Murphy and Caitlin Eason.

C Grade best and fairest honours went to Lucy Caitlin, who backed up her recent league best and fairest result.

Alice Auld finished runner-up for the grade, with Chicago Smith most consistent for the side.

The Penola Football and Netball Club followed up its senior awards with the junior presentation night which was held last night.

Penola A Grade netballer Tegan Lythgo was named best player of the finals series for the Eagles.

Kaitlin Egan was voted best and fairest for the A Grade Penola netball side.

'Dream end' claims coach

By Trevor Jackson

BACK-TO-BACK premierships was hardly on the Kalangadoo radar when the 2023 Mid South East football season kicked off.

The Magpies had lost a few players from the 2022 premiership winning-roster and Alex Lyon had taken over the reins as coach.

The first half of the season did not provide a lot of hope of achieving back-to-back glory, but then the Magpies began to find their mojo.

In the end they finished second after the minor rounds, with just four losses registered, behind Port MacDonnell, who had lost just two games.

The Demons were bundled out of the finals race and Hatherleigh was the opponent in the big game.

The Eagles had enjoyed a similar trajectory in their journey to the grand final, with both sides appearing to peak at the ideal time.

A tough contest was expected and that is how it panned out.

With just minutes on the clock the Kalangadoo lead went from three points to six and when the final siren sounded, the fans erupted.

For Lyon, it was a dream ending to a tough season.

"It was a super game of footy, one of the best games I have been a part of in terms of intensity," he said.

"They (Hatherleigh) were really impressive with how hard they were.

"They were very hard edged and very desperate.

"Both teams had an equal amount of will, but we were just able to get the win which was great."

Lyon recounted the final minutes of the game, including a moment where he dropped the football in front of four Hatherleigh players to allow the Eagles to close the margin.

He said it was a nervous time, but some important flows of play ensured the Magpies remained in front.

"There was a crucial contest with Ethan Maney and Tom Hutchesson with about a minute left on the clock," he said.

"Tom was able to get that footy to ground which was pivotal.

"Mitchell Lowe's effort in the last quarter across centre-half-back line was astronomical with his intercept marks.

"He was absolutely super.

"And our mid-field just didn't stop.

"Lachy Jones was super-impressive and super-desperate."

As for the what the Eagles brought to the grand final, Lyon said it was not what he expected.

"I pride our footy on our pressure," he said.

"Whether our stats guy got this right or not I don't know, but we had 73 tackles and they absorbed every one of them.

"Then they threw it back at us.

"They are known for being a skill-based team that moves the footy quickly with good skills, but they were a different team on Saturday.

"They were tough and hard edged.

"Rigger (Gerard McGrath) has done a superb job with them.

"He lost a few players too and had to develop the side, so he did a really good job."

Once the final siren sounded the reality of back-to-back premierships began to set in, but Lyon said it was more about the achievement on the day.

"Back-to-back premierships does take it to another level," he said.

"But it is a different group from last year.

"There were a few of us who did achieve back-to-back, but it did feel like an isolated premiership in a way.

"From a club point of view we are well aware we went back-to-back and we are very proud of it."

Considering the start the Magpies had to the season, Lyon said it was an extremely satisfying end.

"This season we felt like we hit reset a little bit with the group," he said.

"We showed a lot of strength of character because we weren't looking that flash at the start of the season.

JOY AND SORROW: The joy of Kalangadoo after winning a premiership, with the disappointment of Hatherleigh in the shadows of loss.

JOB DONE: Kalangadoo players celebrate immediately after the final siren.

"We were looking a little bit ordinary, our game style was ordinary and we were underperforming.

"To rise the way we did after the Mount Burr loss, moving forward from there we steadily rose up the ladder and our footy rose that little bit right up until it hit its peak in the grand final, which was very satisfying."

Of course the celebrations were long and hard, with the community supporting both the football and netball sides.

Lyon said the club was an amazing place to be on Saturday night and Sunday.

"We had four flags brought home from the netball girls," he said.

"The connection between them and the footy was great - they all sung the song with us after the game.

"The feel back at the club was electric Saturday night, then on to Sunday the whole community was around us.

"It is a pretty amazing spot to be."

While Lyon said the Reserves players joked their premiership flag was more important, he said overall it was an amazing achievement.

"It will probably never happen again in our lives," he said.

"We haven't done a club double with A Grade and B Grade on the footy side of things since 1984 or 1983.

"I think the last time in the league was Mount Burr in 2012, so it was a super achievement."

Eagles celebrate season

By James Murphy

The Penola Eagles had their night of nights last Friday when hosting their 2023 senior football and netball presentations.

As a whole it was a successful year for the club, with finals appearances in both disciplines.

Ultimately it was the netballers who flew the flag for the Eagles on grand final day, with the A Grade, B Grade and C Grade all claiming the season honours, while the A Reserves and Division 1 sides finished runners-up.

In his first year at the club it has been a successful time for A Grade footballer Jayden Eldridge.

He made an immediate impact at the Eagles' nest and was rewarded for his impressive season with the prestigious A Grade football best and fairest award.

He was followed by Jordan Galpin as runner-up, who also received the 2023 footballer of the year award.

Damien Wenham was voted best backman, while young talent Ned Skeer received a nod from Brad Maney with the coach's award and Brodie Foster led the goal kicking with 33 majors.

Another young-gun was recognised through the best Under 21 award, which was presented to Jacob Robbie.

Others to receive awards included Tom Williams, who was presented with the John Heywood Perpetual Trophy, along with most improved Gerard Merrett and most consistent Brad Bryant.

The Reserves football had Jacob Pfitzner receive the best and fairest award, with Daniel Hackwill runner-up for the season.

Jack Gartner was named most valuable player, while Oli Bennett was most improved and Tom Clayfield led the goal kicking with 67 for the year.

The impressive haul was also enough to take out the Reserves league goal kicking award by a considerable margin.

Phil Lambert was recognised as the recipient of the Shane Batt best team man, while the coach's award went to Mark Arthurson.

Looking off the field and Marcus Devereux was the recipient of the football clubperson of the year award.

After a long servitude to the Penola Football Club in various roles, Devereux received further recognition when presented with life membership on the night.

There was plenty of netball talent on show at Penola this season, reflected in its five grand final appearances.

In the top grade, playing coach Kaitlin Egan received the best and fairest honours after an impressive season, while April Possingham finished runner-up.

Tegan Lythgo was named best player of the finals series and Siobhan Adams was most consistent for 2023.

Tara Millard was the toast of the Eagles' A Reserve side.
